My goal... creating things, both tangible and intangible, that help the community.

Examina a group project with fellow SDA intern and graduate student Allison Conley.

Singapore’s amazing architecture stretches across the entire city.

My motto: Great minds think together.

Francis Aguillard, a senior majoring in architecture and minoring in psychology, interned with SCDA Architects in Singapore in summer 2012.

Getting to know myself...

At Washington University, I’ve learned that hard work is essential to success, and often this work is best done in collaboration with others. During the spring semester of my junior year, I knew I wanted to apply these lessons over the summer with an internship.

Bringing my story to life...

I found my SCDA Architects internship posted in a Career Center eNewsletter. The firm and my interests seemed to genuinely match, and I worked with my Career Advisor Martin Padilla to land the opportunity.

As an intern, I prepared presentations for projects in schematic design and design development stages, built digital and physical project models, and assisted with authority inspections during site visits.

Up next...

I aspire to make airports that make people want to travel, schools that make students want to learn, and homes that make families want to spend time together.

FROM PASSION SPRINGS PURPOSE

"Be open to socializing outside of your department to get a feel for what day-to-day life is like for employees at your company."
